

Shall I take the dividend even when I do not need the money?

Why not take a dividend by the year-end, which is sufficient to cover your basic rate allowance. I will suggest take this money from the company even if you do not need the money as you can lend the money back to the company and this increases your capital and therefore the money, which is yours.

